

Gina Gipson, JD, is the Founder and President of Ah-RaS LLC, a legacy-rooted creative and leadership ecosystem devoted to building spaces where growth feels safe. Through Ah-RaS Consulting & Executive Coaching, she supports leaders, teams, organizations, and communities through executive coaching, professional, development, employee mediation, and speaking engagements. Her work centers on intentional development, emotional intelligence, and helping people lead with greater clarity, accountability, and confidence.

A Philadelphia-based strategist and third-generation entrepreneur, Gina brings more than 28 years of experience across legal, nonprofit executive, entrepreneurial, corporate, and social-impact sectors. Her professional background includes Fortune 100 legal work in litigation support and discovery management, where she supported complex, multi-district product liability matters and cross-functional teams focused on compliance and risk mitigation. She later transitioned into nonprofit leadership as Executive Director of Make Your Name Great, Inc., where she expanded a one-city summer college-readiness initiative into a seven-city national program serving students across Atlanta, Philadelphia, Miami, Dothan, Buffalo, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

Gina has designed and facilitated professional development curricula for youth, college students, emerging professionals, and organizational leaders on topics including workplace communication, conflict resolution, goal setting, financial literacy, entrepreneurship, and leadership readiness. Her style is practical, transparent, and interactive, drawing on real-world experience to help people navigate growth, change, and opportunity with greater confidence.

She holds a Bachelor of Science in Law and Legal Studies from Morris Brown College and a Juris Doctor from Southern University Law Center. Gina is also the author of You're Safe Here: Finding Yourself in the Seasons You Didn't See Coming, published under Ah-RaS Publishing.
